

shaven. He looks pugnacious, and he is noted as a fighter. Addicks, on the other hand, is a wily politician of the most corrupt sort. He lived in Philadelphia for some time, and has made a large fortune.

BOSTON, June 17.—The seventh annual convention of the Medal of Honor Legion opened at Faneuil Hall to-day. Delegates were present from all parts of the country. General Nelson A. Miles was unanimously elected president and Major General Theodore S. Peck, Adjutant-general of Vermont, was elected senior vice president.

Chicago Milliners Fail.

CHICAGO, June 16.—Theodore Ascher & Co., one of the oldest and largest millinery firms in this city, made an assignment to the County Court to-day, declaring itself insolvent. The liabilities are estimated at $100,000, and it is thought that the assets will more than cover them.

Mark Hanna—The quiet and good-natured manner in which the convention-to-day proceeded, and the fact that the party is now united for a great victory, this I call for McKinley. The platform, I believe, will be acceptable to every good citizen and patriotic American and to every business man.

Thomas C. Platt—Without disparaging whoever may be the nominee of the Republican party, I believe that the platform of the United States I believe that the East could have secured the nomination of some of the leaders had they not wavered. So far as I am concerned the platform is a thoroughly good one. Our insistence upon the solid Professor Joshua M. Van Cott, expert on pathology at the Long Island College Hospital, evinced keen interest in the subject and was comparatively easy.

“I am loath to countenance so-called ‘cures,’” he told me, but in the present instance, the first warning will do no harm.

Let me first dwell upon the effect of tetanus bacillus in the cases of some animals.

It is well known that tetanus bacilli can produce typical tetanic spasms, which are progressive from the site of inoculation in one and a half to two days, with death in three to five days.

In the case of man, however, the convulsions, I refer more particularly to Kansas City Journal.

A Philadelphia paper asserts that no one has ever seen a Quaker beggar. This is matter that will have to be taken on faith. Not one person in a thousand ever stops to inquire whether the beggar who imports him is a Quaker, a Methodist, or merely a Democrat.

This image shows a vertical strip of aged, textured paper. The paper has a mottled, off-white or light gray color with visible fibers and some minor discoloration or foxing. A prominent, dark, irregular border runs vertically along the right edge of the strip, suggesting it might be a piece of tape or a damaged edge of a larger sheet. The overall appearance is that of an old, weathered document fragment.
